Seals Have a Laborious Method of Keeping Themselves Supplied With Air.

Not many people know how the seal of the far North gets air when the Arctic ocean is entirely covered with many feet of ice.

The small spotted seal, which is a mariner and not a fur bearer, is the hardy dweller of the northern waters, remarks the Youth's Companion.

Under his tough, thick skin he has an inch or more of blubber. When the ice closes up the open water in the Arctic the seal selects a spot and begins to drill a hole to the surface by pressing his warm nose against the ice. Nobody knows how many hours it takes him to accomplish his task, but he manages it; and although he is obliged to work most of the time, because the surface of the hole is continually freezing, he keeps it open all winter, and obtains air.

Seals have been known to drill in this manner through 50 feet of solid ice. Whether or not they take turns in the slow drilling is not positively known.

It is at these "seal holes" that the polar bear seeks food in the winter, and there the Eskimo waits, spear in hand, for his weekly supply of meat.

The Children.

It is a base thing to be at anything but our best before children. We may think that a child will not know that our show of temper or irritation is not justified. We may expect him to believe that it is right because we do it. But if he does look upon our failure as something entirely right, how have we lowered his standards! Just because a child is so ready to believe trustfully that what he sees in others is good, we should be all the more keenly alert to let him see in us only the best.

A specialist in children's books said recently before the Bookkeepers' school, in New York: "All the money we may make out of distributing unworthy books could not take away the shame we should feel if it came back to us that we had in any way assisted in the mean work of lowering a child's taste or character ideals." Do we ever lower the tastes or ideals of the children in our own home, or school, or neighborhood? To do wrong before those who may innocently think it is right, is about as disastrous a way of propagating our own failures as could be imagined.—Exchange.

AGE HAS ITS COMPENSATION

Philosophical View as Taken by This Man Seems to Have Much to Recommend It.

He was a lively old chap of past seventy at a lobster palace table with a glass of plain water for tipple.

"Of course," he was saying to the younger men with him, "I am not as long for this world as you chaps are, if you live to be as old as I am, but I have a satisfaction in life that you haven't. I know because when I was in my forties every time I had anything the matter with me I got scared."

"I was afraid that either it would kill me with only half my life lived or that it was some lingering disease that would make thirty or forty years of my life a burden. Nor was I alone in thinking that way. Every man of my age had the same feeling. I think that comes to most men when they are about thirty."

"Youth's carelessness lasts only a very short time and a man might soon begin to wonder what will happen to him next, or how long he will stay in good shape. When a man reaches my age he begins to be careless again. Most of what will happen to him, and what he is through with it, and what is to happen next doesn't make much difference because in the nature of things it can't last long whatever it is and the finality comes as a resting spell and a cessation from the worries of the flesh."

"I know some old men who don't take the same view of themselves that I do, and I am sorry for them, because a man owes it to himself, I think, to quit bothering about giving up when he knows he has to do it whether or no."

NonSense to Stay in RUT

Ability to "Rise" in Life is More or Less Present in Every Human Being.

In every business there are many who know nothing about their possibilities. They live humdrum lives, plodding along in the same old rut from day to day, but in a business sense they are practically dead and finish their business careers without waking up—they just exist. They see an occasional man rise up from the mass on the wings of fortune or fame. He is a nine-day wonder, and then the rest of the community settle down again and wait for something to "turn up" for them.

The hidden forces for rising out of the rut are to be found in all "ordinary" folk. All that is needed to put those forces to work is an awakening—a realization that great effort is behind great accomplishments. Fame and fortune do not come unbidden. They come only by reaching out and grasping them as they pass by.

The man who is satisfied with things as they are, will never rise above his fellows, but the man who reaches out and grasps every opportunity is the man upon whom good luck will smile.

The hidden power is in you, all right, and there it will stay until you wake up and go out in the world and make yourself known. Modesty may be a virtue, but merit that vaunts itself occasionally is the kind that brings home the money to the wife and children.

Love.

Love has no doubts. To itself love is the very substance of reality. The phenomena of sight, sound, touch and their fellows, are but the conditions under which life has made a foothold for itself in this holoistic world; the senses know nothing beyond their own functioning, they have nothing to say regarding the end or purpose of life. But to love—all the labor and effort of all the universe, with all its sidereal systems, with all its ethereal immensity, has been for the sake of producing love. Of what consequence is it, whether insensible matter endure a myriad years, or assume infinite billions? In the absence of consciousness, an infinity of matter is as nothing. One flash of conscious life illumined by love is worth all the billions, all the effort, all the labor, of unconscious energy throughout an infinity of time. Consciousness is but a minister of love, to the love that is to be.—Atlantic.

Boring Thin Glass.

Everybody who has tried understands how difficult it is to bore a hole in a strip of thin glass. The following method is said to be very successful: Press a cake of wet clay upon the glass and then make a hole through the clay of the desired size, laying bare the glass at the bottom of the hole. Then pour melted lead into the hole, and it will drop through the glass, making a rough aperture. The explanation is that the sudden application of heat cracks the glass in a circle corresponding in size with the hole in the clay.—New York Tribune.

LIQUOR LICENSE NOW MAIN ISSUE

Measure Passed by Senate Faces Fight in Lower Branch of Assembly.

CRISIS, IT IS THOUGHT, COMES SATURDAY

A Desperate Rallying of Forces in Columbus in Preparation for the Final Working Days of the Ohio Legislature.

Special Columbus Correspondent.

Columbus, May 13.—There is a desperate rallying of forces here in preparation for the final working days of the general assembly. Prime interest continues to lie in the outcome of the Willis-Hamilton county struggle for supremacy on the liquor license issue, and this issue continues to overshadow and overawe all other matters, as has been the case for weeks. Although the assembly reconvenes today, the fight on license will not come to a crisis, it is thought, until Saturday, since it will take that long for the license bill, passed by the senate, to come formally before the lower house without a suspension of rules. And the governor's forces have not the votes. It is conceded, to suspend the rules. Various guesses are being made on the outcome of the contest which is trying the resources of the administration, on the one hand, and of the Hamilton countians and their Democratic allies on the other. The odds of the week begin with the governor, first, because of his prestige in whipping the senate into line last week, and second, because the house at the start is admittedly more tractable than the upper branch of the assembly. Although compromises are vaguely talked of in this license war, the indications are that the fight will be one to the finish. The governor is said to be determined to rush the license "decentralizer" through, and some of his advisers are boasting of their intention to capture a few Democratic votes in the skirmishing. The opposition is holding that Democratic votes will not slip because the present law which the proposed "decentralizer" attacks is a Democratic measure. But in the absence of the final showdown, the precise stand of the minority is a matter of speculation, even though most of its members will stand by the present law. Meantime the administration is sending out calls for all majority members to be in their seats from the moment the gavel falls this morning until the license vote is taken. Representative Mansfield of Jefferson county and Representative Moore of Vinton county, who have been ill for some time, are being depended upon by the administration to be on hand for the fight. When the assembly shall be able to complete its work still depends on the success or defeat of the governor in the pending fight. On all hands it is conceded that if the administration falls the assembly will continue in active session next week and that final adjournment will not be possible then until near the first of June.

Willis Doesn't Favor Plan.

Gov. Willis is not willing that the legislature should make an appropriation for a governor's mansion at this time. This is disappointing news to Columbus real estate dealers, who have all along been strong for such a proposal. They profess to be actuated by purely patriotic motives in their advocacy of a home for the chief executive. Nearly every governor recommends a mansion, but oddly enough, stipulates that it should be erected after his retirement from office. No governor wants to assume the responsibility for the expenditure of such a sum as the erection of a residence for the chief executive would involve while he is in office. And this is why Ohio has never provided a home for its governors, although it has been talking about doing so for many years.

Again Chief Game Warden.

Gen. John C. Speaks of Columbus has been reappointed chief game warden for a new term of two years. He has filled this position for something like eight years. He now gets an annual salary of $3,000. The appointment is made by the state agricultural commission. Speaks is a Republican and was appointed during the Harris administration. He is now gathering data on the cost of establishing additional fish hatcheries at the various large lakes owned by the state.

Reappointed Oil Inspector.

J. M. Carr of Barborton, whose oil position as state oil inspector was abolished by the Moore bill re-creating the state oil inspection department, has been reappointed oil inspector under the new law by Gov. Willis. This law reduces the inspection fees to a point where they will only be sufficient to cover the operating expenses. The supreme court knocked out the old law because the fees were so large that this made the department a revenue producing one for the state when it should only be an inspecting one.

Doctor Pleads Not Guilty.

Toledo, O., May 13.—Dr. W. A. Charter, 71, one of the best known physicians of Marion, O., pleaded not guilty before Federal Judge Killits of violating the new Harrison dope law. Dr. Charter is charged with having prescribed large quantities of tincture of morphine and opium derivatives to two women without filling out internal revenue blanks. Dr. Charter is the first Ohio physician to be indicted under this new law.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This preparation is intended especially for rheumatism, lame back, sprains and like ailments. It is a favorite with people who are well acquainted with its splendid qualities. Mrs. Charles Tanner, Wehach, Ind., says of it, "I have found Chamberlain's Liniment the best thing for lame back and sprains I have ever used. It works like a charm and relieves pain almost instantly. It has been used by others of my family as well as myself for upwards of twenty years." 25 and 50 cent bottles. For sale by all dealers.—Adv.
